Maharashtra Govt favors setting up a fishing harbor in Versova beach

MUMBAI
Sagar Sandesh News BUREAU

A fishing harbor is coming up in the Versova beach after reclaiming nineteen hectares of land from the sea. The Maharashtra Coastal Zone Management Authority (MCZMA) has given its nod, under the Coastal Regulation Zone (CRZ) Notification, for the purpose brushing aside concerns from the environmentalists.

The reclamation work is largely for the construction of two breakwaters that will jut out more than a 1km into the sea.

The area between the breakwaters will act as a basin for boats, around 13.5 hectares in area, and will be able to service a fleet of about one thousand vessels. The project is spread over 30 hectares, involving reclaimed land of 19 hectares, in CRZ-1 and CRZ-4 areas.

The infrastructure can be provided onshore without having to dredge the intertidal area. Versova Beach has become prone to severe erosion due to the construction of Coastal Road in the south. In the last two years, the beach has already been reclaimed for a 'anti-erosion' wall.

Fishing harbor at Versova beach

We can't afford to lose more of it according to environmentalists.

"The fishing population in the area faces several challenges that have impacted their livelihood to a great extent.

The fishermen complain about lack of basic facilities. About 84 per cent fishermen families in the study area come under BPL category, uplift of the families from BPL to APL category is required for the overall development of the fishermen families. To boost the incomes from fishermen, proposed fishing harbor should be started as soon as possible," the state coastal zone management authority has decided and has forwarded the recommendation to the Centre for approval.

The authority however noted the project's possible impact on the adjoining Versova Creek, and emphasised that "all necessary environmental measures at stipulated in Environment Impact Assessment should be implemented in letter and spirit",
