The real impact of this conference lies not just in the discussions we've had, but in the actions we take henceforth. Diversity is not just a destination, but a journey – it requires unwavering commitment and a shared responsibility.”

After her closing note, Sanjam received a well-deserved standing ovation from everyone present.

Overall, it was a successful day that, hopefully, changed a lot of mindsets to shape a brighter future for the maritime industry.

About Maritime SheEO

Maritime SheEO leads the charge in promoting diversity within the maritime sector, annually hosting the world's largest conference dedicated to this pivotal cause. Through this flagship event, the organization not only highlights industry best practices but also serves as a catalyst for discussions on innovation, leadership, and competitive advantage. In tandem with these efforts, Maritime SheEO is committed to ground-breaking research on diversity within the industry, aiming to underscore its business case and propel positive change. Additionally, the organization champions the empowerment of women through leadership programs tailored for mid-level professionals, powered by the International Maritime Organization (IMO). These initiatives collectively foster a level playing field, eradicate unconscious bias, and pave the way for women's seamless progression into leadership roles, contributing to a more inclusive and dynamic maritime landscape.

DK Butterfly 1, the bankruptcy estate of Bed Bath & Beyond, has filed an extraordinary case with the Washington DC-based regulator against MSC, seeking $158m in damages and a further $158m for alleged “willful retaliatory conduct”.

The 36-page document filed details what the defunct US home furnishing company described as exploitative and coercive behaviour.

Describing MSC’s service contract performance during 2021 as “abysmal”, the complaint details how the now bankrupt company was forced to enter the spot market to get its goods shipped.

SHIPPING NEWS

$316m case filed against MSC in the US

In the largest suit filed in the history of the Federal Maritime Commission (FMC), Mediterranean Shipping Co (MSC), the world’s largest container line, is potentially on the hook for $316m.

The complaint also alleges that MSC coerced the retailer into paying premiums, as well as hitting the shipper with unfair detention and demurrage charges.

DK Butterfly 1 has filed complaints earlier against Orient Overseas Container Line and Yang Ming as well, albeit seeking far less in damages.
